How Others View Weather in Your Area

The North and Northeast is embalmed under 3 feet of ice for like 9 months of the year. All winter, tanker-loads of salt are dumped over what is called “Goiter’s Triangle” that stretches from Detroit to Bangor to Cleveland. To help indoors, millions of Amish Heaters are sent (second one shipped FREE!) to thaw inhabitants. Several regain consciousness and revote in Chicago elections.

The Midwest – in organized midwesterly fashion - has a tornado scheduled every 90 minutes. That’s why the show, Storm Chasers (previously called “9 Sorta Bored Idiots in a Van Full of Cameras”) drives around Nebraska hoping to outrun 270 mph winds. When the Tornado Generator Vortex Thruster machine is being serviced, a flood is called in to relieve boredom.

In the Northwest, it has been raining since the Paleozoic era. In Seattle, a town where Noah wouldn’t have made Eagle Scout, it’s not unusual to see a giant squid in a coffee shop, just lying there... lost, but caffeinated. Those raised in the Northwest have never seen their shadow outdoors, thus believe “The Sun” is a rumor. Mildew is considered a crop.

In the Southwest, they pretend to have two seasons: 1) hot and 2) dry, but they occur simultaneously. (Then why the appeal of Taco chips and hot sauce?) The west half of Texas - which is larger than all of Europe - also boasts of “Tumbleweed Season,” though it was determined these are actually remnants of the border fence.

As non-conformists, California refuses to have weather. They instead have “trends” which include seismic gyrations, mudslides, geysers, and locust swarms. Oddly, locals contend that it’s “Surf’s Up” all year at 72 degrees with perfect humidity, yet the Television News shows houses sliding down hills onto Interstate 5, where no one really notices, but honks and refuses to let them “cut in line”. California behaves like an island, which could be prophetic.

WHERE I'VE BEEN

I have been in many places, but I've never been in Cahoots. Apparently, you can't go alone. You have to be in Cahoots with someone.

I've also never been in Cognito. I hear no one recognizes you there.

I have, however, been in Sane. They don't have an airport; you have to be driven there.

I have made several trips there, thanks to my friends, family and work.

I would like to go to Conclusions, but you have to jump, and I'm not too much on physical activity anymore.

I have also been in Doubt.. That is a sad place to go, and I try not to visit there too often.

I've been in Flexible, but only when it was very important to stand firm.

Sometimes I'm in Capable, and I go there more often as I'm getting older.

One of my favorite places to be is in Suspense! It really gets the adrenaline flowing and pumps up the old heart!

At my age I need all the stimuli I can get! I may have been in Continent, but I don't remember what country I was in.

It's an age thing. PLEASE DO YOUR PART! Today is one of the many National Mental Health Days throughout the year. You can do your bit by remembering to send an e-mail to at least one unstable person.

My job is done! Life is too short for negative drama & petty things. So laugh insanely, love truly and forgive quickly! From one unstable person to another. I hope everyone is happy in your head - we're all doing pretty good in mine!
